Kulanu ("All of Us" in Hebrew) supports isolated, emerging, and returning Jewish communities around the globe. Founded in 1994, our mission is twofold: connection and Jewish community-building.

We encourage visitors from around the globe to spend time in our partner communities. From rabbinical students and journalists to millennial travelers and retirees, they bring their knowledge and skills to each destination, and in return, they deepen their own connection to Judaism.

Simultaneously, we assist communities as they develop their own Jewish learning and practice, build their local infrastructure, and increase educational opportunities.

Kulanu currently works with partner communities in over 30 countries in Africa, Asia, Europe, and North and South America.

In 2018 Kulanu helped many communities in Latin America, Africa, Asia, and Europe. Just a few highlights include:

- Assisting members of a Jewish community in Zimbabwe to build a second water storage dam, complete a soil conservation project, and launch a promising chicken business
- Helping members of the Uganda Jewish community to support an inter-faith school for 400 children, build a computer lab, increase health and sex education for young women, and provide more education for special-needs children and services for teachers
- Repairing Jewish cemeteries in Suriname and helping arrange for families in Nicaragua to move to safety during civil unrest
- Arranging for visitors to such communities as Indonesia, Nigeria, Madagascar, Ecuador, India, and Myanmar, bringing Jewish education, books, ritual objects, and computers and smartphones for connecting to the greater global community
- Helping to sponsor Jonatas Chimen, a Crypto-Jewish artist as Kulanu’s artist-in-residence, as he traveled and educated Jewish communities in the US about his unique spiritual journey
